Petrobras announces petroleum discovery in deepwater Gulf of Mexico

(Rio de Janeiro, June 30, 2003). PETROLEO BRASILEIRO S.A. Petrobras, (BOVESPA: PETR3 / PETR4, NYSE: PBR / PBRA, LATIBEX: XPBR / XPBRA), Brazil's largest oil and gas, petrochemicals and energy company, and partners announced today a petroleum discovery from an exploratory well on the Chinook Prospect, in the ultra-deepwater, in the US sector of the Gulf of Mexico.

Drilling operations on the well Chinook #3 began 13th January 2003, in the Walker Ridge Block 469, using the drill ship C.R. Luigs. Drilled in water depth of 8,830 feet, the well reached a total depth of about 27,650 feet and encountered a gross petroleum column of 620 feet, with 260 feet of net pay. The well was temporarily abandoned for future use.

Petrobras owns a 30 percent interest in the Chinook Prospect. BHP Billiton is the Operator with 40 percent interest; Total and Amerada Hess are the other interest holders with 15 percent each.

The Chinook discovery is a very encouraging exploratory result and will be subject of additional appraisal activities, as well studies aiming at development production, before definitive conclusions can be reached relative to the scale of the resource .

The Chinook prospect is located about 20 miles south of recently discovered Cascade, also located in the Walker Ridge area and operated by BHP Billiton, in which Petrobras holds a 25 percent interest in the discovery well, drilled in 2002.

Petrobras' participation in these two discoveries are in compliance with its Strategic Plan and represents important steps towards the consolidation of a quality deepwater exploration and production portfolio in the Gulf of Mexico.
