The Value Line Fund, Inc.

To Our Value Line

To Our Shareholders:

The Value Line Fund had a total return of 10.40% in 2005, compared with the 4.91% return of the S&P 500 index(1).

The equity market had a strong month in November, which accounted for the majority of the year's returns. This lackluster performance was somewhat surprising considering the strong earnings growth that was posted by corporations during the year in combination with solid economic data for the U.S. Several factors have contributed to this subpar return environment. First, higher oil prices have concerned consumers and investors alike as they have recently broached the $60-a-barrel level again, up roughly 50% from a year ago. Higher energy prices can have a two-fold effect as they weaken consumer's purchasing power as well as reduce the profit margins of certain industries. Second, while it appears the Federal Reserve is approaching an end to its year-and-a-half long tightening cycle, a new Chairman will soon be replacing Alan Greenspan as the head of the Federal Reserve, which creates a sense of uncertainty for both the fixed income and equity markets. Lastly, given the strong operating margin improvement and the resulting strong earnings growth that U.S. corporations have delivered over the last several years, it would appear that going forward these gains will likely be more moderate.

The Value Line Fund generally invests in stocks that are ranked in the highest category for price performance over the next six to twelve months by the Value Line Timeliness(TM) Ranking System. The system favors stocks with strong price and earnings momentum relative to those of all other companies in the Value Line Investment Survey of approximately 1,700 stocks. Currently, the Fund has significant weightings in the Industrial and Information Technology (IT) sectors. The largest holdings are in the IT area, which has not done well over the past few years and many investors are expecting some pent up demand to surface in 2006. Investors should keep in mind, however, that this sector is one of the most volatile in the S&P 500 Index. The Fund is also significantly underweighted in the Financial sector due to the slowing growth of earnings that we expect from this sector due to higher short-term interest rates and the relatively flat yield curve.

Looking forward, we expect 2006 to be similar to the past year with support for the equity market coming from U.S. corporations, which currently have high levels of cash holdings and merger and acquisition activity that looks like it will continue to increase.

As always, we appreciate your continued investment.

Sincerely,

/s/ Jean Bernhard Buttner
Jean Bernhard Buttner

Economic Observations

The business expansion is likely to proceed at a somewhat slower pace of 3.0%-3.5% during the latter stages of 2005 than we had expected earlier, reflecting the major damage done to the Gulf Coast's economic underpinnings by the recent hurricanes in that region. As before, the economic up cycle should be sustained by healthy levels of construction spending and capital goods demand. Moreover, recent trends suggest that the economy will continue to grow at a stable 3.0%-3.5% in 2006.

Helping to sustain this upturn next year are likely to be solid levels of activity in the manufacturing area and the service sector. In fact, the need to rebuild portions of the hurricane-ravaged Gulf area should give the economy a modest boost. Such growth will probably be accompanied by still moderate, but somewhat higher, rates of inflation. The wild card in this equation, and one reason that we are not likely to see a higher level of business growth, is the high price of oil. Should that commodity stabilize in price over the next several months, as we assume, the sustainability of the long economic expansion, as well as the prolonged period of comparative price stability, probably would continue. Any material and sustained increase in oil prices from these recent levels would logically threaten this economic and inflation stability.

A continuing steady rate of gross domestic product growth and the accompanying stable rates of inflation that we expect would have positive ramifications for the financial markets. That's because this combination would logically allow the Federal Reserve to bring its cycle of monetary tightening to a close over the next several months--if not sooner--without undue harm to the lengthy economic and corporate earnings up cycles.

FUND EXPENSES (unaudited):

Example

As a shareholder of the Fund, you incur ongoing costs, including management fees; distribution and service (12b-1) fees; and other Fund expenses. This Example is intended to help you understand your ongoing costs (in dollars) of investing in the Fund and to compare these costs with the ongoing costs of investing in other mutual funds.

The Example is based on an investment of $1,000 invested at the beginning of the period and held for the entire period (July 1, 2005 through December 31, 2005).

Actual Expenses

The first line of the table below provides information about actual account values and actual expenses. You may use the information in this line, together with the amount you invested, to estimate the expenses that you paid over the period. Simply divide your account value by $1,000 (for example an $8,600 account value divided by $1,000=8.6), then multiply the result by the number in the first line under the heading "Expenses Paid During Period" to estimate the expenses you paid on your account during this period.

Hypothetical Example for Comparison Purposes

The second line of the table below provides information about hypothetical account values and hypothetical expenses based on the Fund's actual expense ratio and an assumed rate of return of 5% per year before expenses, which is not the Fund's actual return. The hypothetical account values and expenses may not be used to estimate the actual ending account balance or expenses you paid for the period. You may use this information to compare the ongoing costs of investing in the Fund and other funds. To do so, compare this 5% hypothetical example with the 5% hypothetical examples that appear in the shareholder reports of the other funds.

Please note that the expenses shown in the table are meant to highlight your ongoing costs only and do not reflect any transactional costs, such as sales charges (loads), redemption fees, or exchange fees. Therefore, the table is useful in comparing ongoing costs only, and will not help you determine the relative total costs of owning different funds. In addition, if transactional costs were included, your costs would have been higher.

Hypothetical (5% return before expenses)	$ 1,000.00	$ 1,019.55	$ 5.70

* Expenses are equal to the Fund's annualized expense ratio of 1.12% multiplied by the average account value over the period, multiplied by 184/365 to reflect the one-half period.

The Value Line Fund, Inc.

Notes to Financial Statements

1. Significant Accounting Policies

The Fund is registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended, as a diversified, open-end management investment company whose primary investment objective is long-term growth of capital.

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates. The following is a summary of significant accounting policies consistently followed by the Fund in the preparation of its financial statements.

(A) Security Valuation. Securities listed on a securities exchange are valued at the closing sales prices on the date as of which the net asset value is being determined. Securities traded on the NASDAQ Stock Market are valued at the NASDAQ Official Closing Price. In the absence of closing sales prices for such securities and for securities traded in the over-the-counter market, the security is valued at the midpoint between the latest available and representative asked and bid prices. Short-term instruments with maturities of 60 days or less at the date of purchase are valued at amortized cost, which approximates market value. Short-term instruments with maturities greater than 60 days at the date of purchase are valued at the mid point between the latest available and representative asked and bid prices, and commencing 60 days prior to maturity such securities are valued at amortized cost. Securities for which market quotations are not readily available or that are not readily marketable and all other assets of the Fund are valued at fair value as the Board of Directors may determine in good faith. In addition, the Fund may use the fair value of a security when the closing market price on the primary exchange where the security is traded no longer accurately reflects the value of a security due to factors affecting one or more relevant securities markets or the specific issuer.

(B) Repurchase Agreements. In connection with transactions in repurchase agreements, the Fund's custodian takes possession of the underlying collateral securities, the value of which exceeds the principal amount of the repurchase transaction, including accrued interest. To the extent that any repurchase transaction exceeds one business day, it is the Fund's policy to mark-to-market the collateral on a daily basis to ensure the adequacy of the collateral. In the event of default of the obligation to repurchase, the Fund has the right to liquidate the collateral and apply the proceeds in satisfaction of the obligation. Under certain circumstances, in the event of default or bankruptcy by the other party to the agreement, realization and/or retention of the collateral or proceeds may be subject to legal proceedings.

(C) Federal Income Taxes. It is the Fund's policy to comply with the requirements of the Internal Revenue Code applicable to regulated investment companies, including the distribution requirements of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, and to distribute all of its taxable income to its shareholders. Therefore, no federal income tax provision is required.

(D) Security Transactions and Distributions. Security transactions are accounted for on the date the securities are purchased or sold. Interest income is accrued as earned. Realized gains and losses on sales of securities are calculated for financial accounting and federal income tax purposes on the identified cost basis. Dividend income and distributions to shareholders are recorded on the ex-dividend date. Distributions are determined in accordance with income tax regulations which may differ from generally accepted accounting principles.

(E) Foreign Currency Translation. Assets and liabilities which are denominated in foreign currencies are translated to U.S. dollars at the prevailing rates of exchange. The Fund does not isolate changes in the value of investments caused by foreign exchange rate differences from the changes due to other circumstances.

The Value Line Fund, Inc.

December 31, 2005

Income and expenses are translated to U.S. dollars based upon the rates of exchange on the respective dates of such transactions.

Net realized foreign exchange gains or losses arise from currency gains or losses realized between the trade and settlement dates on securities transactions, the differences between the amounts of dividends, interest, and foreign withholding taxes recorded on the Fund's books, and the U.S. dollar equivalent of the amounts actually received or paid. Net unrealized foreign exchange gains and losses arise from changes in the value of assets and liabilities, other than investments, at the end of the fiscal period, resulting from changes in the exchange rates.

(F) Representations and Indemnifications. In the normal course of business the Fund enters into contract that contain a variety of representations and warranties which provide general indemnifications. The Fund's maximum exposure under these arrangements is unknown, as this would involve future claims that may be made against the Fund that have not yet occurred. However, based on experience, the Fund expects the risk of loss to be remote.
