Item 2.05 Costs Associated with Exit or Disposal Activities

On December 15, 2004, management of Prudential Financial, Inc. (the Company) committed to sell or exit its Dryden Wealth Management business. This business encompasses the Company's private client wealth management business in Europe and Asia. For the year ended December 31, 2004, the Dryden Wealth Management business had revenues of approximately $125 million and a loss from continuing operations before income taxes, extraordinary gain on acquisition and cumulative effect of accounting change of approximately $80 million (inclusive of the impairment charge of approximately $53 million referred to below). At December 31, 2004, the Dryden Wealth Management business had total assets of approximately $635 million. The Company has retained an investment banking firm to assist it in identifying and evaluating potential courses of action to carry out management's decision. General notification of this decision to affected employees occurred on February 4, 2004.

As a result of this decision, the Dryden Wealth Management business, which historically has been included in the Company's International Investments segment, is being included in Corporate and Other operations as a divested business commencing with the fourth quarter of 2004, with prior period results being adjusted to reflect such reclassification. Divested businesses reflected in Corporate and Other operations consist of businesses that have been or will be sold or exited that do not qualify for discontinued operations accounting treatment under generally accepted accounting principles. The results of divested businesses are excluded from adjusted operating income, which differs from income from continuing operations calculated in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles but is the financial measure that the Company uses to analyze the operations of each segment in managing its financial services businesses.

In connection with the preparation of the Company's consolidated financial statements for the quarter ended December 31, 2004, the Company has determined that such quarter's results should reflect a charge of approximately $53 million for impairment of goodwill associated with the Dryden Wealth Management business. The Company also estimates that it will expend approximately $15 million in retention and incentive payments to Dryden Wealth Management employees during 2005 in connection with this decision. Because the Company has not committed to any specific course of action, the Company is not able currently to provide an estimate of other charges or future cash expenditures, if any, that might be required in connection with selling or exiting the Dryden Wealth Management business.
