Space Technology third quarter 2005 sales increased 2 percent from the third quarter of 2004, primarily due to higher sales in Civil Space and Intelligence, Surveillance & Reconnaissance, which were partially offset by lower sales in Missile & Space Defense and Satellite Communications. Civil Space revenue increased 23 percent, due to higher volume from NASA and National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration programs. Intelligence, Surveillance & Reconnaissance revenue rose 6 percent due to higher volume in restricted programs.

Space Technology third quarter 2005 operating margin increased 18 percent from the third quarter of 2004 primarily due to improved performance in Intelligence, Surveillance & Reconnaissance and higher sales volume in Civil Space.

Third Quarter 2005 Highlights

A Northrop Grumman-led team was awarded a contract by the Missile Defense Agency to continue its prime contractor role for the Joint National Integration Center (JNIC) Research and Development Contract. The award is an indefinite delivery/indefinite quantity contract potentially worth $1 billion over 10 years.

Northrop Grumman signed a contract with the United Kingdom for E-3D AWACS support program valued at approximately $1 billion.

The U.S. Navy awarded Northrop Grumman a contract to provide operations, maintenance and engineering support for the Navy and U.S. Marine Corps East and West Coast training ranges. The contract is valued at approximately $208 million over five years.

The U.S. Navy awarded Northrop Grumman a contract valued at $109.8 million for advanced planning, long-lead material and systems engineering on the LHA(R) amphibious assault ship program. The total contract value, if all options are exercised, will be $264 million.

Northrop Grumman was selected as the lead system integrator for unmanned ground vehicles under the U.S. Army's Family of Integrated Rapid Response Equipment (FIRRE) program. The company's Remotec, Inc. subsidiary will provide its Tactical Amphibious Ground Support (TAGS) vehicle as the main unmanned ground platform to support the program.

Northrop Grumman received U.S. Department of Homeland Security approval of its design for the Guardian protection system, the company's Counter-MANPADS system intended to protect commercial aircraft from attack by ground-based, shoulder-fired missiles.

The DD(X) national team led by Northrop Grumman has successfully completed the initial critical design review for the overall systems design for the DD(X) multi-mission destroyer. The event demonstrated that the program was ready for the Flag level review in September 2006 and that the DD(X) Flight 1 is complete, stable and mature enough to enter detail design.

Northrop Grumman reached the first construction milestone in the life of the new-generation aircraft carrier, CVN 21. The company cut one of the first pieces of steel, a 15-ton plate for a side shell unit of CVN 78, the first ship of the CVN 21 program.

The company announced that it will compete as the prime contractor for the U.S. Air Force's next-generation air refueling tanker.

Stephen E. Frank, former chairman, president and chief executive officer of Southern California Edison was elected to the company's board of directors. Northrop Grumman's board now totals 11 members, 10 of whom are non-employee directors.

Jerry B. Agee was elected president of the company's Mission Systems sector and lead executive for the company's missile defense business.

James F. Pitts was elected president of the company's Electronic Systems sector.
