At September 30, 2012, the Fund had sufficient cash and/or securities to cover commitments under these contracts.

The Fund is subject to equity price risk in the normal course of pursuing its investment objective. The Fund purchases put options, with respect to a substantial portion of its investments in common stocks, on indices or exchange-traded funds that replicate such indices at strike prices below the current value of the index or exchange-traded fund to reduce the Fund s exposure to market risk and volatility. In buying put options on an index or exchange-traded fund, the Fund in effect, acquires protection against decline in the value of the applicable index or exchange-traded fund below the exercise price in exchange for the option premium paid.

During periods of high and rising volatility, the Fund may and did write put options during the period ended September 30, 2012 on indices at a strike price below that of the Fund s long put options on indices or exchange traded funds, creating a spread that reduces the overall cost of protection, but also limits protection. The Fund writes index or OTC call options at the money and occasionally, OTC put options on individual stocks below the current value of the security to generate premium income. In writing index call options, the Fund in effect, sells potential appreciation in the value of the applicable index above the exercise price in exchange for the option premium received. The Fund retains the risk of lost appreciation, minus the premium received, should the price of the underlying index rise above the strike price. In writing put options on individual stocks, the Fund in effect, sells protection against decline in the value of the applicable individual stock at strike prices below the current market price in exchange for the option premium received. The Fund retains the risk of loss, minus the premium received, should the price of the underlying stock decline below the exercise price. The Fund is not subject to counterparty credit risk with respect to its written options as the Fund, not the counterparty, is obligated to perform under such derivatives.

At September 30, 2012, the aggregate fair value of open derivative instruments (not considered to be hedging instruments for accounting disclosure purposes) in an asset position and in a liability position and whose primary underlying risk exposure is equity price risk was $17,057,940 and $3,999,945, respectively.

Under generally accepted accounting principles for fair value measurements, a three-tier hierarchy to prioritize the assumptions, referred to as inputs, is used in valuation techniques to measure fair value. The three-tier hierarchy of inputs is summarized in the three broad levels listed below.

Level 1 quoted prices in active markets for identical investments

Level 2 other significant observable inputs (including quoted prices for similar investments, interest rates, prepayment speeds, credit risk, etc.)

Level 3 significant unobservable inputs (including a fund s own assumptions in determining the fair value of investments)

In cases where the inputs used to measure fair value fall in different levels of the fair value hierarchy, the level disclosed is determined based on the lowest level input that is significant to the fair value measurement in its entirety. The inputs or methodology used for valuing securities are not necessarily an indication of the risk associated with investing in those securities.

At September 30, 2012, the hierarchy of inputs used in valuing the Fund s investments and open derivative instruments, which are carried at value, were as follows:
