Zogenix cautions you that statements included in this report that are not a description of historical facts are forward-looking statements. Words such as plans, believes, expects, anticipates, and will, and similar expressions are intended to identify forward-looking statements, and are based on Zogenix's current beliefs and expectations. Such statements include, without limitation, statements regarding the expected timing of the FDA review and action date and potential approval of the sNDA and updated labels with abuse deterrent claims for Zohydro ER; the potential to develop an abuse deterrent formulation of Zohydro ER with Altus and the timing of related studies; the potential timing of negotiating and carrying out a co-promotion agreement for Zohydro ER; the timing of the commencement of Phase 3 clinical trials for Brabafen and a multi-dose clinical and safety study and Phase 3 clinical trials for Relday and the timing of the results; the potential timing of NDA submissions for each of the abuse deterrent formulation of Zohydro ER with Altus, Brabafen and Relday and the expected timing of the FDA review and potential approval of the NDA submissions; the size of the commercial opportunity for Zohydro ER and Relday; and the ability to secure debt financing based on the non-binding term sheet. You are cautioned not to place undue reliance on these forward-looking statements, which speak only as of the date hereof. Zogenix's actual future results may differ materially from its current expectations due to the risks and uncertainties inherent in its business. These risks include, but are not limited to: risks and uncertainties associated with regulatory review and approval of the sNDA, including the risk that additional information or data requests from the FDA could significantly delay the FDA's review period; risks and uncertainties associated with the development and regulatory approval of an abuse deterrent formulation with Altus and Zogenix's reliance on Altus and its drug delivery platform in such development efforts; unexpected adverse side effects or inadequate therapeutic efficacy of the abuse deterrent formulations that could limit approval and/or commercialization; Zogenix's dependence on the successful commercialization of Zohydro ER; Zogenix's ability to achieve broad market acceptance and generate revenues from sales of Zohydro ER; public concern regarding the safety of drug products such as Zohydro ER and the impact of negative publicity and political influences relating to the regulation of the pain management market in general and opioids and Zohydro ER in particular; competition from other pharmaceutical or biotechnology companies; risks associated with the acquisition of Brabant and integration of Brabant's operations into Zogenix's business, including an increase in near and long-term expenditures, exposure to unknown liabilities and diversion of Zogenix's management's time and attention; Zogenix's dependence on its contract manufacturers and its ability to ensure an adequate and continued supply of Zohydro ER to meet market demand; Zogenix's dependence on third parties to develop an abuse deterrent formulation of Zohydro ER, Relday and Brabafen; the potential that earlier clinical trials may not be predictive of future results; Zogenix's ability to successfully enforce its marketing exclusivities and intellectual property rights, and to defend the patents covering Zohydro ER, including the potential for Paragraph IV litigation relating to the product; the potential product liability exposure associated with pharmaceutical products such as Zohydro ER and other products Zogenix may in-license or acquire; difficulties in identifying, negotiating and carrying out a co-promotions agreement for Zohydro ER; Zogenix's ability to fully comply with numerous federal, state and local laws and regulatory requirements that apply to its commercial activities; the risk that Zogenix will be unable to negotiate and enter into definitive agreements for a potential debt financing, on acceptable terms, or at all; Zogenix's ability to raise additional funding that it may need to continue to pursue its commercial and business development plans; and other risks detailed under "Risk Factors" and elsewhere in Zogenix's periodic reports and other filings made with the Securities and Exchange Commission from time to time. All forward-looking statements are qualified in their entirety by this cautionary statement, which is made under the safe harbor provisions of Section 21E of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, and Zogenix undertakes no obligation to revise or update this report to reflect events or circumstances after the date hereof.
