Emerging growth company

If an emerging growth company, indicate by check mark if the registrant has elected not to use the extended transition period for complying with any new or revised financial accounting standards provided pursuant to Section 13(a) of the Exchange Act.

Item 8.01 Other Events

On August 18, 2017, the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit issued a decision in the matter of Constitution Pipeline Company, LLC (Constitution) v. New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (Department) (Docket No. 16-1568). The Second Circuit denied Constitution's petition for review of the Department's decision denying certification under Section 401 of the Clean Water Act. However, the Second Circuit determined that it lacked jurisdiction over Constitution's legal challenge related to the timeliness of the Department's decision and, therefore, whether the Department had waived the Section 401 certification. The Second Circuit further recognized that jurisdiction over such issue lies with the District of Columbia Circuit court. As stated in the Form 10-Q filings on August 3, 2017 by The Williams Companies, Inc. and Williams Partners L.P. (collectively, Williams), Williams continues to target an in-service date for such project as early as the first half of 2019, which assumes the timely receipt of a Notice to Proceed from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

Portions of this document may constitute forward-looking statements as defined by federal law. Although Williams believes any such statements are based on reasonable assumptions, there is no assurance that actual outcomes will not be materially different. Any such statements are made in reliance on the safe harbor protections provided under the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. Additional information about issues that could lead to material changes in performance is contained in Williams' annual and quarterly reports filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission. Williams undertakes no obligation to update or revise forward-looking statements, whether as a result of new information, future events, or otherwise.
