Item 1.01. Entry into a Material Definitive Agreement.

On February 10, 2006, Targeted Genetics Corporation entered into a collaboration agreement, or Subcontract, with the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, or CHOP, relating to the development of an AIDS vaccine candidate. The Subcontract was entered into pursuant to a contract awarded to Columbus Children's Research Institute, or CCRI, in collaboration with CHOP by National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Disease, or NIAID. As described in Targeted Genetics' current report on Form 8-K, filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission on November 30, 2005, the NIAID awarded a $21.75 million contract, or NIAID Contract, to CCRI to expand adeno-associated viral vector, or AAV, based HIV vaccine development, of which Targeted Genetics as a subcontractor is eligible to receive up to $18 million over five years.

Under the terms of the Subcontract for the first fiscal year of the award, Targeted Genetics will provide expertise for the selection of a specific vaccine concept, provide the necessary personnel, process development, cGMP production and clinical and regulatory expertise required for a targeted development effort culminating in the production and clinical testing of a promising AIDS vaccine candidate. Targeted Genetics is eligible to receive amounts of up to $3,087,023, including direct and facilities administration costs under the Subcontract for 2006. In addition, certain fixed fee payments will be distributed based on the achievement of certain clinical and process milestones. The Subcontract for the first fiscal year of the award terminates August 30, 2006, subject to early termination by either party upon the occurrence of certain events, including the termination of the NIAID Contract.
