Syngenta sets out path to expand global leadership

- Integrated strategy to drive market share growth
- Capital Markets Day to showcase unrivaled technology breadth
- Sales of key crops expected to more than double to surpass $17 billion
- Sales growth in second quarter 2011 robust

At the 2011 Capital Markets Day at the Syngenta Jealott's Hill Research Centre, UK, senior executives will explain the significant value creation potential of the company's new integrated strategy. Executives will outline how the company targets market share gains driven by a fully integrated commercial and R&D organization with a global crop focus. The day will highlight the breadth of the company's technologies across all the world's major crops: cereals, corn, oilseeds, rice, soybean, sugar cane and vegetables.

"Since we announced our new strategy in February, we have made major progress in its implementation. Today we are sharing the value creation potential of that strategy," said Mike Mack, Chief Executive Officer. "Syngenta is focused upon the discovery and development of integrated solutions which go beyond the single product paradigm. Our confidence in the future growth potential of our business is underpinned by an innovation pipeline which will increase sales of key crops to over $17 billion post 2015, compared with $8.4 billion today. This, combined with our integrated business model, will enable us to grow faster than the global market and deliver superior returns to our shareholders. In addition, the resilience of our sales in the second quarter, despite adverse weather conditions, demonstrates the strength of the current portfolio upon which we are building our new strategy."

"This is an exciting time to be working at Syngenta as we embark on a new era of innovation and productivity," said Sandro Aruffo, Head Syngenta R&D. "Our crop and grower-focused approach to research and development, combined with our broad range of technologies and the quality of our scientists, underpins our confidence that we will continue to outperform in the years to come."

Syngenta is one of the world's leading companies with more than 26,000 employees in over 90 countries dedicated to our purpose: Bringing plant potential to life. Through world-class science, global reach and commitment to our customers we help to increase crop productivity, protect the environment and improve health and quality of life.
