Sirius Dogged By Good News

Evelyn M. Rusli, 10.30.07, 3:00 PM ET

Nothing short of a finalized merger with skymate XM Satellite Radio, will make Sirius Satellite Radio investors happy. On Tuesday, Sirius' third-quarter earnings report was in line with Wall Street's expectations, but its stock stumbled 4.4%, or 16 cents, to $3.45, in midday trading.

It was a sharp fall for what was a decent quarterly report.

The satellite radio provider narrowed its loss to $120.1 million, or 8 cents a share, from $162.9 million, or 12 cents a share, for the year-ago period. Meanwhile, sales ticked up 44.7%, to $241.8 million, from $167.1 million. While the sales figure was just below the Street's call of $244.3 million, profits on a per-share basis were right in line with analyst expectations.

In addition, more customers flocked to Sirius, as the company expanded its subscriber base by 49.8%, to 7.7 million subscribers, from 5.1 million for the year-earlier period. The company predicts it will pass the 8 million mark by the end of this year.

Strong demand for the Sirius service drove robust subscriber growth, and, when coupled with a continuing focus on cost control, allowed Sirius to significantly reduce our net loss and places us on-track to achieve our financial goals, Chief Executive Officer Mel Karmazin said.

We expect strong holiday season sales and we are targeting positive free cash flow for the fourth quarter of 2007.

Despite the swath of positive indicators, the stock retreated Tuesday, as investors digested the report.

In Wall Street's twisted logic, that good can sometimes mean bad, there was some speculation that the solid report could be detrimental to Sirius' merger plans with XM Satellite Radio. The companies are struggling to finalize a combination, despite opposition from the Federal Communications Commission and the Department of Justice.

Given Sirius' positive report card, federal regulators may be less sympathetic to the merger. A strong performance by one company, or signs of growing momentum, may encourage regulators to hold off on approval. So far, Sirius is the only one has to worry about that. Last week, XM said its third-quarter loss widened 70.1%, to $145.4 million, or 47 cents per share, from $85.5 million, or 32 cents per share, for the year-ago period, which was a larger deficit than the Street expected. XM, which has never had a profitable year, is also paying 23.4% more to add on subscribers.

Despite the hurdles ahead, Sirius and XM have some champions in their corner. Last week, a group of Democrats from the House of Representatives sent a letter to the Federal Communications Commission Chairman Kevin Martin calling him to approve the merger.

We firmly believe that allowing these satellite-radio companies to merger in order to be able to better meet the content needs of this market on a national basis, with exceptional digital sound quality and no commercials, at relatively low costs to the consumer, is in the public interest, the letter said.

Shares of XM were down 8.2%, or $1.25, to $13.92, on Tuesday afternoon.

More Sirius-XM merger support from Congress

By Ryan Saghir

October 29, 2007

Eleven members of Congress voiced their support for the Sirius-XM merger, in a letter addressed to FCC Chairman Kevin Martin.

The letter was signed by:

Rep. Sanford Bishop (D-GA), Rep. Corrine Brown (D-FL), Rep. Yvette Clarke (D-NY), Rep. Danny Davis (D-IL), Rep. Eliot Engel (D-NY), Rep. Ralph Hall (R-TX), Rep. Alcee Hastings (D-FL), Rep. Carolyn Maloney (D-NY), Rep. Greg Meeks (D-NY), Rep. Bobby Rush (D-IL), and Rep. Edolphus Towns (D-NY).

...the merger of Sirius and XM will create new opportunities for this type of diverse programming that has been overlooked by terrestrial-radio broadcasters. This merger will allow the companies to offer even more diverse content by consolidating programming and better utilizing capacity to offer even more unique and diverse programming to currently underserved populations.

The timing of this is interesting.

The NAB came out with their own Congress-backing letter to the FCC many months ago. Meanwhile, Sirius-XM lately have seen momentum build on Capitol Hill with support from various lawmakers. Is this a calculated killing blow tactic? Or did it just take them this long to garner this level of support?

Ensign, DeMint Praise XM, Sirius for Efforts to Offer Customers Choices

Washington, D.C. Senators John Ensign (R-NV) and Jim DeMint (R-SC) today praised XM and Sirius Satellite Radio for promising to offer their customers increased control over which radio channels they receive, should their proposed merger be approved and completed.

These options will give American consumers more control over the programming they pay for, said DeMint. Sirius and XM have responded to the market's desire for more choice, and we applaud them for voluntarily offering subscribers new and innovative listening options. We are particularly pleased that they will offer family-friendly options that allow subscribers to block adult programming.

The entertainment marketplace is very dynamic and competitive, said Ensign. This is a great example of how private industry can and will respond to the demands of consumers without the need for government intervention. We hope that other entertainment providers will follow XM-Sirius' lead and offer Americans increased choices and customization.

The Senators also pointed out that many of the promised options would actually cost subscribers less than the current packages offered by Sirius and XM.
