DOCOMO Announces Capital and Business Alliance through Private Placement of New Shares by a Consolidated Subsidiary

NTT DOCOMO, INC. (the Company) today announced that the board of mmbi, Inc. (mmbi), a consolidated subsidiary of the Company, resolved on November 29, 2011 to enter into a capital and business alliance with 11 companies including Fuji Media Holdings, Inc. An outline of the details is presented below.

1. Purposes of the Capital and Business Alliance

With a view to the launch of broadcasting services scheduled for April 2012 by NOTTV , a broadcasting station for smartphones, mmbi, by entering into a capital and business alliance with companies having various know-how pertaining to the broadcasting business and other related matters, aims to offer attractive content tailored to the needs of viewers and will make all-out efforts for an early take-off of the Mobacas V-High multimedia broadcasting services for mobile reception.

2. Details of the Capital and Business Alliance

(1) Details of the capital and business alliance

For a capital increase through private equity placement, mmbi plans to issue 962,000 shares of common stocks through a third-party share allotment. Of these newly issued shares, 196,620 shares are planned to be subscribed by 11 companies including Fuji Media Holdings, and the remaining 765,380 shares are expected to be subscribed by six existing shareholders, including the Company.

This capital and business alliance will realize the provision of broadcasting know-how and content, the supply of devices compatible with the Mobacas services, and business and technical cooperation for the early take-off of the Mobacas services, through which mmbi plans to launch NOTTV , scheduled to start broadcasting in April 2012.
