Item 8.01. Other Events.

On August 30, 2006, the U.S. Court of Federal Claims (the Court ) granted the U.S. Government's motion for reconsideration as to a portion of the U.S. Government's liability to Sterling Savings Bank (the Bank ), a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sterling Financial Corporation ( Sterling ). The decision modified the Court's previous order, issued in September 2002, granting the Bank's motion for summary judgment as to liability on its claim that the U.S. Government owed contractual obligations to the Bank with respect to the Bank's acquisition of three failing thrifts during the 1980s and that the U.S. Government had breached its contracts with the Bank.

In its recent order, the Court ruled that the U.S. Government is not liable to the Bank for breach of contract with regard to the Bank's acquisition of Central Evergreen Federal Savings and Loan Association, the largest of the three thrifts acquired by the Bank at the U.S. Government's request. The order did not affect the finding that the U.S. Government is liable to the Bank on its contract claim for the two smaller thrifts acquired by the Bank. Sterling is currently evaluating the impact of this decision on the case and how it intends to respond to the decision.
